Danville couple arrested, charged with burglary

By Amanda Cole
Staff Writer

A Danville couple was arrested over the weekend in relation to attempted break-ins in Casey County.

Cherish P. Rogers, 23, and Jason D. Brummett, 26, both of 451 W. Main St., Danville, were arrested on Saturday by Casey County Deputy Chad Weddle on charges of burglary and attempted burglary in the second degree, and theft by unlawful taking over $500.

From July 9-16, at least five incidents were reported to Liberty Police and the Casey County Sheriff's Office of a couple attempting to gain entry into residents' homes on Dry Ridge Road, Ky. 1547, Popplewell Street and Wilson Ridge Road.

BRUMMETT

ROGERS

Boyle County authorities arrested Rogers at her residence in Danville Saturday morning on an unrelated warrant, Weddle said.

Boyle authorities then contacted Weddle about the arrest and said they knew Brummett was at the apartment as well.

"I told them, go back and get him and hold him until I get there," Weddle said. "I then interviewed them both and they confessed they were the ones knocking on doors and attempting to break in."

Rogers and Brummett are accused of entering the home of Kenny Clements on Dry Ridge Road on July 16.

Rogers admitted to going into the home and taking two jars of coins, two $20 bills, and jewelry while Brummett sat in a vehicle outside and kept watch, stated the citation.

Clements arrived home to find Brummett seated in a white SUV in the driveway, the front door open and lights on inside his home.

Castle doors open the world of travel to local student

Nanette Wright had cold chills when she received the text from her son Spencer saying he was finally at Neuschwanstein Castle in Germany.

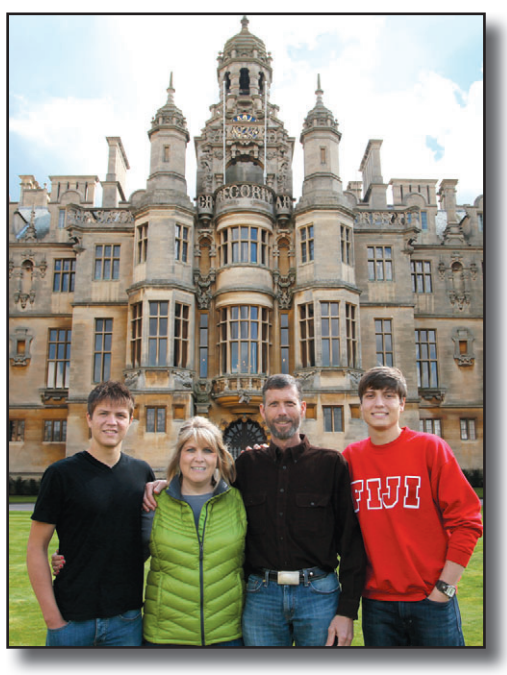

"He had talked about going there for years, since he was in fourth grade," Nanette said.

It all started when Spencer was in Laura Fox's gifted and talented class and saw a picture of the castle on her computer.

"She said she had visited it then told me that the world I live in is as big as I make it, whether it be the county I live in, the state, country or the whole world," Spencer said. "I was so amazed and that's what got me wanting to see the world and study abroad."

Spencer, 21, is fulfilling his dreams. He's been to 17 countries in six months this year.

He spent the spring semester studying aboard in Grantham, England, an hour north of London, then backpacked with two friends across Europe for three weeks. He briefly returned home to Liberty in May before leaving on a 10-day mission trip to Haiti.

"I hadn't even flown. I'd never been out of the country," Spencer said. "Everything was new to me, but that made it even more awesome."

Library suffers water damage

Closed until further notice

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

Casey County Public Library Director Jan Banks shook her head in amazement after discovering that a heavy downpour in Liberty early Thursday morning caused water to overflow into the inside of the ceiling in the Casey County Public Library, prompting library officials to close the building until damage assessments and clean up can be completed.

"First, our bookmobile driver Jim Tucker broke his leg earlier this year and then the air conditioning went out three weeks ago and still isn't fixed, and now this," she said.

When a library employee found the damage on Thursday about noon, an army of volunteers — including female inmates from the Casey County Detention Center — swung into action, bagging wet books that would be disposed of.

Casey schools set open houses as new year begins Aug. 8

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

Casey County students will be walking through the doors of their respective schools two weeks from today, ready for a new school year.

But before that takes place, students and parents will pick up some valuable information about the new school year at open houses at each school.

Students can also take advantage of the annual Back to School Bash, which will be held from 4-6 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) at the Pork Producers building at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center.

The event, catered for students countywide in grades PreK-6, will offer free Reading is Fundamental books, information and supplies from various local businesses who will have booths on hand, school supply lists, class rosters, door prizes, and refreshments.

Also, the Cumberland Family Medical Dental van will be on hand with personnel doing free dental screenings.

The event, which draws hundreds of people each year, is sponsored by the Casey County Family Resource Centers and Title I Parent involvement.

Information about an elementary school supply list can also be found on the school district's Web site, www.casey.kyschools.us, by clicking on the "schools" link at the bottom of the page and selecting the particular school. Supply lists are available at area retailers.

Open houses at the various schools take place between July 30-Aug. 6, with opening day for students set for Wednesday, Aug. 8.

Casey County High School will host an open house for freshmen on Monday, July 30, at 6:30 p.m. and for upperclassmen on Tuesday, July 31, also at 6:30 p.m.

Casey County Middle School's open house is set for Monday, Aug. 6 at 5:30 p.m. while the elementary schools' open houses are scheduled for Thursday Aug. 2 at 6 p.m.

Kevin Stephens, Director of Pupil Personnel for the school district, said all school employees will report on Monday, Aug. 6, for professional development.

On Aug. 7, all personnel — certified and classified — are to report to Casey County High School for a "Welcome Back" breakfast at 8.a.m. at the Casey County High School cafeteria and then afterwards, they report to their respective schools.

Students will report to their respective schools on Wednesday, Aug. 8. The last day of classes is scheduled for May 21.

Stephens said that this year's school calendar reflects four days for personal development — on Aug. 6., Sept. 19, Nov. 5, and Feb. 15. Students will not be in classes those days.

"The first three days of spring break are potential make-up days that are built in, and the rest of the days are built at the end of the calendar," he said.

Editor's Note: The list of Casey County school bus routes and drivers will be featured in next week's issue, along with information about any changes at the various schools.

Letters to the Editor

Thankful for Casey County Library volunteers

Many of you may know about the recent disasters at our Casey County Public Library but many others might not.

The air conditioning system decided to break down in the middle of one of the hottest summers we've ever had and parts to repair it have been difficult to find because other air conditioners everywhere were also breaking down.

On top of it all, the storm we had Wednesday night, July 18, caused considerable damage with rainwater collapsing the ceiling in the main room of the library, flooding the area, and causing the loss of many wonderful books.

The bright spots in all this were the wonderful staff led by Jan Banks and Kathy Goode, who took action along with a cadre of volunteers from the community, all of whom deserve our gratitude and thanks. In addition, special recognition should go to Jean Ellis and her group of female inmates who came in and worked tirelessly. The cleanup is still going on with our staff hard at it.

Our library is special and so are the members of our community who helped in this flooding disaster. As president of the library's board of trustees, I'd like to add my thanks. It's a privilege to know you.

Emergency workers are to be commended

I have recovered from a hip operation and want to let the community know about the Casey County Ambulance Service and Air Evac Life team.

I injured my hip on May 23 and responders from the Casey County Ambulance Service came immediately. They cared for me until the Air Evac helicopter landed on our front pasture to fly me to Norton Orthopedic Hospital in Louisville.

The four EMTs were kind, considerate and professional. They are to be commended for their service and we thank the responders and their companies.

Volunteers save the day at Casey Library

My husband and I chose to live in Liberty/Casey County because we valued the way people seem to take care of each other. I saw evidence of that last week after heavy rains came through the roof, flooding the Casey County Public Library. Volunteers showed up to help staff with the clean up and salvaging of books and computers. Among them were women from the Inmates Program, shepherded by Jean Ellis, who were the first to respond. Staff gave up vacations and birthdays to be there with neighbors, patrons, board members and elected officials who helped wherever possible. Patient library patrons will be rewarded with an even better library.

Give the governor a break on this one

Larry ROWELL
Staff Writer

This is the season for political pundits of every stripe and persuasion to trot out an opinion about all things politic.

The race for president is heating up and the mud-slinging has already begun. President Obama states this while former Gov. Mitt Romney denies that. And on and on and on.

I was hoping we'd get a reprieve from the political ads here in Kentucky because we're not one of the important swing states such as Ohio.

And since the state legislature won't be in session until next year, I was also hoping that criticism of either the governor or legislators would be at an all-time low.

But alas, no such luck. Gov. Steve Beshear is in the crosshairs of critics who say he made a bad decision in holding a fund-raiser at the Governor's Mansion to help with expenses for his daughter-in-law to compete in an international horse trial in England. Me, I'm perfectly fine with this.

It's not illegal and I believe it's the prerogative of the governor to hold events which promote personal and family causes.

Although the Beshears and friends who are co-hosting the event are paying all the expenses for the "grip, grin, and grab your billfold," they are being pilloried for holding this at the mansion and not at their farm in Clark County.

Is a governor not allowed to have a friendly get-together at the people's house? After all, it's perfectly legal and appropriate.

And that's OK, because it's not tax dollars that are being spent.

What governor hasn't hosted "events" at the mansion that uses the power of the office to support the event?

Former Republican Governor Ernie Fletcher hosted, as has governors before and after him, the Derby-eve Gala that was for the most part, paid for with corporate donations.

No one is crying about that.

It's a perk that goes with the power and I wish others who criticize the governor would find something else to whine about.

No one is going to agree with everything the governor does, but good gracious, give the man a break.

And need I remind you, the Beshear administration has dropped almost $2 million in Casey County in recent years for a new water tank and to help expand a local business that will create jobs for this community.

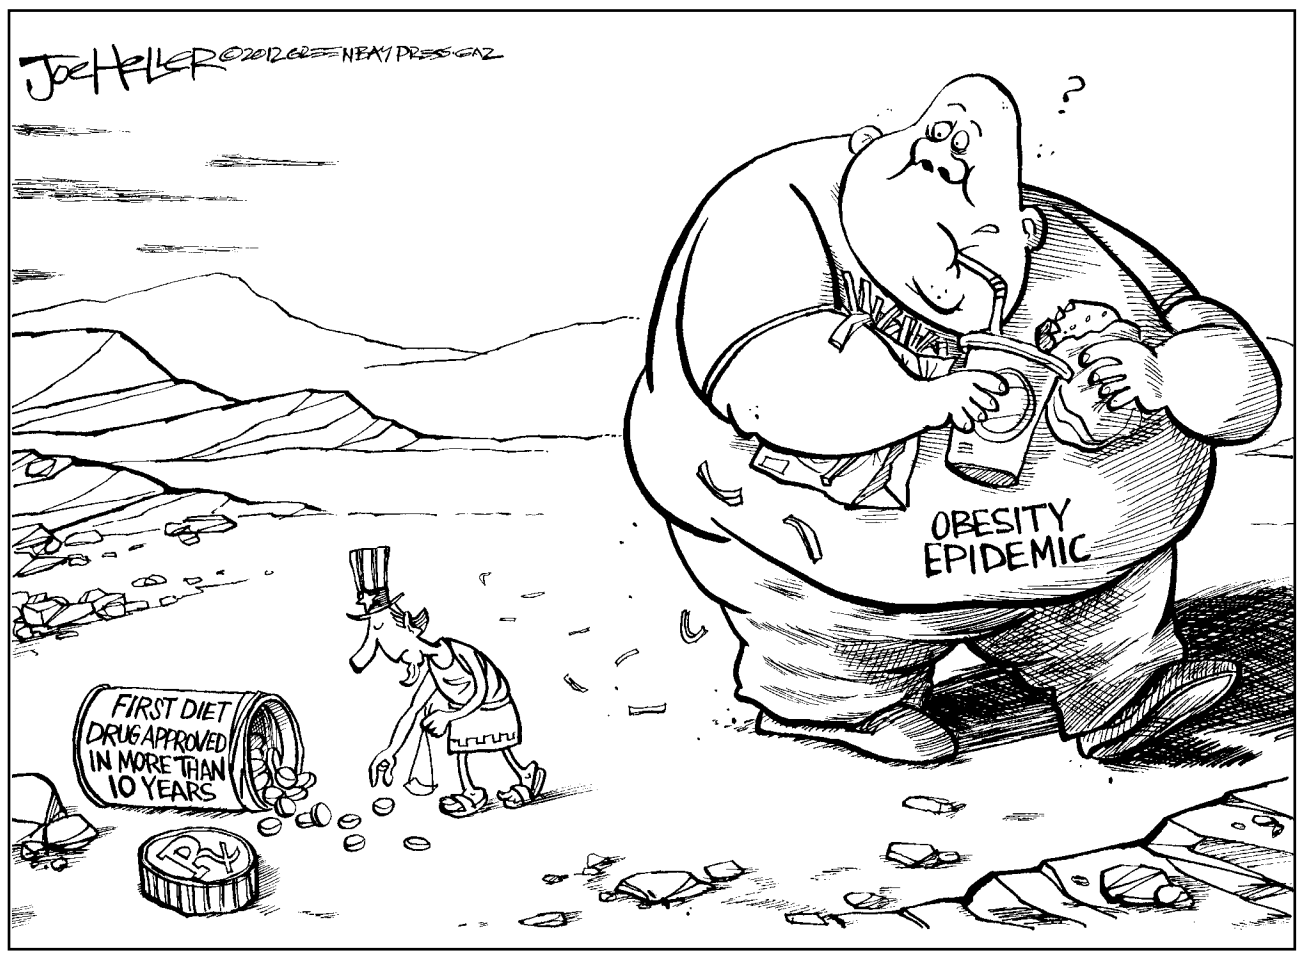

When he and his wife, Jane, came to Liberty on separate occasions to present these checks, I found them to be warm and gregarious people who love all Kentuckians, and not simply those who agree with them.

Some governors might look at how our county voted and if it was the opposite party that was heavily favored as it is in Casey County, he or she might not be as inclined to drop big bucks here.

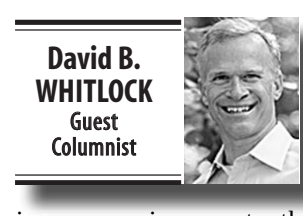

Beshear is a Democrat and this county is heavily Republican and we still got the money for two projects.

If the governor wants to host a family event at the mansion at his own expense, then by all means, do it.

Unanswered questions in theater shootings

David B. WHITLOCK
Guest Columnist

Why?

It's the first question I asked, and likely the one you first asked too.

It still echoes from theater number nine in the Century 16 Theater in Aurora, Colo., where 12 people were murdered and 58 injured.

And it's the one question we will never completely know.

We will in time learn the details of the hows: how he ordered the materials police say he used for the deadly booby traps found in his apartment; how he purchased the guns; how he so elaborately rigged his apartment with explosives and chemicals; and how he allegedly staged his murders. We may even learn how particular social and personal conditions led to his heinous act.

We are interested in those hows, but it's the why that eludes us.

Why would a brilliant, budding young scientist with a stellar academic record, a young man with no criminal history beyond a traffic violation, a student among the academically elite, working on his Ph.D. in neuroscience at the University of Colorado-Denver, why would he meticulously plan and carry out one of the most deadly crimes in U.S. history?

We feel better if we can find a reason. The media once again jumped to conclusions. Within hours of the massacre, ABC News' Brian Ross erroneously reported that a man with the same name as the suspect living in the same town was a member of the Colorado Tea Party. ABC promptly apologized.

Such efforts to politicize the murderous actions of a crazed man are futile attempts to answer the question, "Why?"

We may feel better if we can find a reason for senseless acts of violence. And it's okay to ask why.

It's our nature to ask why because we want a reason, a logical explanation for a senseless, meaningless act. We want to bring order to chaos. We somehow feel that if we can find an explanation for the evil, we can take measures to avoid it.

This murderous action reminds us that intelligence and academic achievement do not always equate with sanity or good moral judgment.

An intelligent mind can be used for good or evil, according to how one chooses to use it. God is not a puppeteer. And evil by its very nature is senseless, opposing all that God is. We cannot always understand the why of evil.

As the prophet Jeremiah wrote, "The heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked. Who can understand it?" (Jeremiah 17:9)

Our unanswered question in no way diminishes God's presence among the grieving.

Though we may walk through the valley of the shadow of death, surrounded by evil, God is still with us in our suffering and pain, even though the dark night may rise, momentarily extinguishing the light, and the pain may overwhelm, temporarily numbing our awareness of Him.

ABC News aired a video showing the suspect, James Holmes, speaking at a science camp at Miramar College in San Diego when he was 18. He gave a presentation on "temporal illusion," which Holmes defined as "an illusion that allows you to change the past."

In the presentation, he says he studies subjective experience, which he says, "takes place inside the mind, as opposed to the external world."

Somewhere in time the reality of the external world and the illusion of his inner mind collapsed into a reign of terror.

Why? Was it a "temporal illusion…that allows you to change the past?"

Unfortunately it's not.

It's just evil.

Knowing there is no explanation for it, we lovingly embrace those closest to us as we call on God to bring hope to the hopeless and healing to the hurting.

Casey County offers unique location for U.S. 127 Yard Sale

By Amanda Cole
Staff Writer

It's that time of year again when wheeling and dealing will be going on at the U.S. 127 Yard Sale.

The 127 Yard Sale officially begins next Thursday, Aug. 2, and continues through Sunday, Aug. 5.

People will be setting up for the world's longest yard sale all week long, but others started planning as far back as December.

"I started working with the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center in December and I was getting calls on it my first day here," said Jennifer Harsey, director at the center.

Located just off U.S. 127, the Ag Center offers spaces for hundreds of vendors under an open-air covered arena. The center also has parking, a concession stand, restrooms and RV sites.

"When you have that many vendors centrally located, it's going to draw a crowd," Harsey said. "And people are going to come back year after year to shop the same vendors."

The center's 94 indoor booths are sold out.

"We have a waiting list if there are any cancellations," she said.

The center has about a dozen outside spaces still available. Indoor spaces are $75 and outdoor areas are $45 for Thursday through Sunday.

Vendors are coming from Indiana, North Carolina, Tennessee, and as far away as Georgia.

"We have a lot of different states represented and a great deal of locals too," Harsey said.

Items sold will include antiques, furniture, glassware, jewelry, Avon, clothing, homemade crafts, woodwork, leather work and more.

Some will be offering their skills.

"We have a guy who specializes in knife sharpening who will be setting up a booth and that's all he'll be doing," Harsey said.

The annual sale is a big draw for the center.

"It's one of our biggest events of the year," Harsey said. "I'd say it's in the top 10."

It is the biggest retail event for residents, said Liberty-Casey County Chamber of Commerce Director Blaine Staat.

The annual sale can be something to groan about or it can be a great opportunity for Casey County, he said.

"It's up to us whether we take advantage of it," Staat said. "These people will be driving through the city for four days. We need to give them a reason to stop and spend their money, whether it's on gas, food, antiques or collectibles. And we need to make them feel like they've made a good purchase so that they leave feeling good, then they'll come back."

Harsey and Staat both advise residents to plan ahead for heavy traffic.

"There's going to be a lot of traffic," Harsey said. "Be cautious and take your time."

The annual sale starts the first Thursday of August and spans 690 miles from just north of Addison, Mich., to Gadsden, Ala.

U.S. 127 covers 32 miles in Casey County. Some of the more-populated areas include south of Dunnville near the Russell County line, at the junction of U.S. 127 and Ky. 501, and the junction of U.S. 127 and and Ky. 906.

Attorney says tax subject to recall

ADAIR COUNTY — While it may be anyone's guess if it's legal to establish a tax that was eliminated 15 years ago, the hospital district board apparently plans to move ahead with a vote on the issue.

County Judge/Executive Ann Melton said recently that an opinion from the Attorney General's office might not be final by the time the hospital board voted on Friday.

The hospital board began the process on June 26 to institute a 3.7 cents tax per $100 assessment, the first time the hospital district has attempted to impose a tax since 1997.

Hospital officials said they believe the board has the authority to reinstate the tax without being subject to recall, but agreed that the initiative is unprecedented and the process somewhat hazy.

Melton sought the AG Jack Conway's opinion and the request was roundly supported by members of the fiscal court.

Melton said she spoke last week to an attorney with the Kentucky Association of Counties who said he is of the opinion that the tax will be subject to recall.

Commissioner Tom Lund said he's heard business owners ask why they should pay the tax when others aren't, and Commissioner Carlotta Brussell said she's heard similar things.

Boone said the taxes collected in any given month are due on the 20th of following month. On the 21st she updates the chart. When businesses are late, Boone said a letter from the county attorney's office is often enough to prompt them to turn in the taxes they have collected.

Winebrenner asked what the penalty is for businesses that do not turn in the taxes they have collected. The city ordinance reads that interest of 12 percent per annum can be added to delinquent tax payments.

Man gets 11 years for home invasion

BOYLE COUNTY — Michael Durham was sentenced to 11 years in prison by Boyle Circuit Judge Darren Peckler on Thursday for his part in an armed home invasion robbery.

When Durham tried to withdraw his guilty plea and set the case for trial, Peckler declined the request and passed sentence on him. Durham has said he'll appeal the decision.

Durham and his cousin, Shawn Durham, were charged in the 2010 home invasion robbery of Warren and Mary Bigger of Junction City.

During the robbery, Warren Bigger was pistol-whipped and Mary Bigger was threatened with a gun until she told the pair where their valuables were in the home. Old coins, jewelry, cash and a laptop computer were taken.

Shawn Durham pleaded guilty in March and was sentenced to 11 years in prison in a plea deal with prosecutors.

Michael Durham was offered the same sentence, but declined, and his case was set for trial in June. Durham was then indicted for being a persistent felony offender, increasing the prison sentence he could receive if found guilty at trial.

Durham then entered a guilty plea in exchange for an 11-year sentence just before his trial was set to begin.

When Peckler was ready to formally sentence him last week, Durham changed his mind again, telling the judge he wanted to fire his attorney, withdraw his guilty plea and represent himself at trial.

Durham said he didn't deserve the same sentence as his cousin, whom he said had the pistol and used it to strike and threaten the Biggers.

Peckler said that while that may be true, the law states that Durham is still considered an accomplice and equally responsible for the crimes committed.

911 center may change funding source

LINCOLN COUNTY — To keep up with cutting-edge technology that serves the residents of Lincoln and Garrard counties, Bluegrass 911 is going to have another income tax stream.

Lincoln fiscal court magistrates heard that technology is not cheap — as Bluegrass 911's current computer systems approach the end of their lifespans, board members are considering the center's next technology upgrade, expected to cost at least $300,000.

Pending final approval from Lincoln County Fiscal Court, the counties are set to eliminate a $3 monthly fee currently charged to all landline telephones and implement a new $2.50 monthly fee on all water meters, which will become Bluegrass 911's new main source of income.

It's a change brought about by the ever-shrinking demand for landline telephones.

For the past three years, Bluegrass 911 saw a decline of about 6 percent in the number of landlines — and that translates into less 911 funding from landlines.

In June, AT&T said that Bluegrass 911 lost around 1,200 landlines — a huge jump from the average decline over the past year of about 41 AT&T lines per month.

With all telephone carriers in Lincoln and Garrard counties, landline use declined by nearly 1,800 lines in the past year, which includes the recent 1,200-line AT&T loss.

Although the change from landlines to water meters includes a reduction of 50 cents in the per-unit charge, because there are currently about 5,000 more water meters than landlines in Lincoln and Garrard, Bluegrass 911 will actually see an increase in its total income, about $30,000 annually.

Commission seeks info on restaurant taxes

MARION COUNTY — The Lebanon Tourist and Convention Commission receives a monthly report showing which businesses have - and have not - turned in the restaurant taxes they have collected. The commission took a closer look at the tax collection process during its July 9 meeting.

Lori Boone, the Lebanon tax administrator, spoke with the commissioners and answered questions about the tax collection process, with a focus on delinquent taxes.

Commission Treasurer Dave Winebrenner said he appreciates the monthly chart, but he pointed out that the taxes are paid by the customers and collected by local restaurants. This tax is a 2 percent sales tax added to retail sales at restaurants in Lebanon city limits.

City trains businesses for alcohol sales

PULASKI COUNTY — While the City of Somerset is preparing for the arrival of legal alcohol sales on Aug. 26, interested business owners will need extra education on the subject.

Somerset is requiring every business and individual employed in the selling and serving of alcoholic beverages to participate in and complete a city-approved training program.

This mandate, in conjunction with the Kentucky Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC), will educate businesses concerning responsible beverage service.

Applicable to holders of all different types of licenses, including liquor stores, bars and clubs, beer sales, individual drink and wine sales in restaurants, and those with temporary licenses.

Additionally, because all licenses to serve alcoholic beverages are new, employees must be trained before selling alcoholic beverages.

However, there are different ways of training that the state states has to be in the file of every business that has people to sell, distribute, or handle alcohol. Also, it's up to each community as to how it's carried out.

Kentucky ABC offers the STAR (Service Training in Alcohol Regulations) course. The four-hour ABC course costs $35 per person and the certification lasts for three years.

Other training programs include TIPS (Training for Intervention Procedures), and any education courses offered by individual businesses on how to responsibly sell alcohol and keep track of how much customers consume.

The Somerset City Council were scheduled to hold first reading on an alcohol policy ordinance on Tuesday.

The following week, the city will hold a public hearing to get input from residents on how the city's alcohol policies should be administered.

Following that, during the first two weeks of August, the council will vote on a second reading of the ordinance.

Association files suit against marina

RUSSELL COUNTY — The Lake Cumberland Association has filed a lawsuit in an effort to keep another marina from opening in Russell County saturating an already economically-weakened market.

Recently, the Lake Cumberland Association sued the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, asking a federal judge to keep the agency from permitting a new marina site to be leased in Russell County.

The proposed marina would be called Rowena Landing South.

The Lake Cumberland Association is an organization that protects and promotes the interests of those who make their livelihood from the lake.

The lawsuit points to five failed marinas in the last two years, and states that the lake has 1,000 vacant boat slips already.

Several docks have gone out of business including Buck Creek, London, and Alligator One.

In 2007, the U.S. Corps of Engineers lowered the water level of Lake Cumberland, concerned that the pressure of a normal pool might cause a break in the Wolf Creek Dam.

Since that time, with repair efforts on the dam underway, businesses that depend on the lake have been hit hard financially.

With more shoreline open than in the past, many areas are practically bone-dry since the lake was lowered by about 40 feet.

Summer school program helps students get ahead

TAYLOR COUNTY — To many, summer school is a place where students with poor grades make up for it with extra work. Taylor County High School is attempting to change that view with its summer school program that allows students to progress through school ahead of schedule.

Jennifer Fitzpatrick, 21st Century grant director and host of the program, says that students are given tests to determine their skill level and advance accordingly from there.

"A student cannot bypass Algebra 1 and take Algebra 2 without still achieving the class credits," she said. "However, the student can take the Algebra 1 test and achieve the credit without taking the class. On the other hand, a remedial math student may take those courses over the summer to improve their skill level and prepare them for the next step."

Fitzpatrick said the program offers college courses through many different forms, including online courses, dual credit programs through the high school and classes at Campbellsville University at a cost of $65 per credit hour, much cheaper than $500 per credit hour through the university. The main goal of the program is to help prepare students for college life.

"It really helps college-bound kids get ready for a specific route for college," she said. "We have kids graduating that already have 12 hours [a full semester] in college credits."

Lincoln Co. lake closed to swimming

Cedar Creek Lake is closed to swimming, like all other lakes owned or operated by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

"The Lincoln County Fiscal Court constructed a swimming beach at Cedar Creek Lake under a lease agreement, but it never opened to public swimming," said Jeff Ross, assistant director of fisheries for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "The public has used this beach for swimming for years, although signs said it was closed."

After the recent termination of the lease agreement, the swimming beach now falls under the regulations of the KDFWR. The beach lies adjacent to the boat ramp off Charlie Boone Road near the dam.

Conservation officers will be patrolling the area to enforce the regulation of no swimming. Signs will inform the public the beach is closed to swimming.

Anglers may still use the area to fish from the bank.

Resources available for understanding reverse mortgages

Savvy Senior

Ask A Senior Question Get A Savvy Answer

Dear Savvy Senior,
Where can I get reliable, unbiased information on reverse mortgages? My wife and I are thinking about getting one but want to do some research first.
Need Money

Dear Need,
For seniors that are house rich but cash poor, a reverse mortgage is a viable option, but there's a lot to know and consider to be sure it's a good choice for you. Here are some tips and tools to help you research this complex financial product.

Let's start with a quick review. A reverse mortgage is a loan that lets older homeowners convert part of the equity in their home into cash that doesn't have to be paid back as long as they live there.

To be eligible you must be age 62 or older, own your home (or owe only a small balance) and currently be living there.

You can receive the cash either as a lump sum, a line of credit, regular monthly checks or a combination of these. And with a reverse mortgage, you, not the bank, own the house, so you're still responsible for property taxes, insurance and repairs.

Currently, 99 percent of all reverse mortgages offered today are Home Equity Conversion Mortgages (HECM), which are backed by the Federal Housing Administration.

Repayment is due when you or the last borrower dies, sells the place or lives elsewhere for 12 months. Then you or your heirs will have to pay off the loan (which includes the money you borrowed plus accrued interest and fees) either with the proceeds from selling the place, or if you want to keep the house, with money from another source.

Educational Resources

To get a better handle on reverse mortgages and how they work, there are several excellent resources you can turn to for reliable information, but you're going to need access to the Internet utilize them.

To get started, the National Council on Aging recently created a free new website called the Home Equity Advisor that's designed to help you think through the best way to leverage your home – a reverse mortgage isn't your only option.

Just go to homeequityadvisor.org and click on their "Quick Check" tool which will ask you a series of questions about your personal and household situation to define exactly what you might need or want. Then, based on your answers, you'll receive an individualized report offering information, tools, and consumer advice on a range of possible solutions that includes reverse mortgages and other alternatives.

If you find that you are a good candidate for a reverse mortgage, your next stop is at reversemortgage.org, a new consumer website created by the National Reverse Mortgage Lenders Association.

This site offers lots of educational information including "Your Road Map" which will help guide you through all the features of reverse mortgages and the process of obtaining one.

It also has a calculator to estimate how much you'd be eligible to receive from a reverse mortgage, and offers has a comprehensive directory of licensed HUD-approved mortgage lenders, banks, and credit unions that offer reverse mortgage loans in your state.

Get Counseling

Another important resource to help you understand the pros and cons of a reverse mortgage and how it would work in your particular situation is through counseling.

In fact, because reverse mortgages are such complicated products, the federal government requires that all reverse mortgage borrowers receive counseling through a HUD approved independent counseling agency before they take out a HECM loan.

Counseling can be done in person or over the phone and some agencies today provide it for free or at a minimal fee. Some locations charge around $125. To locate counseling agencies in your area, visit hud.gov/offices/hsg/sfh/hecm/hecmhome.cfm or call 800-569-4287.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit SavvySenior.org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" book.

Navigating a farmers market all year long

Debbie SHEPHERD
County Extension Agent for Home Economics

Farmers markets provide a chance for the public to get high-quality, fresh foods and support farmers in their community.

Selling at the markets gives farmers a chance to tell others about their operation and agriculture in general.

In the past few years, people's interest in farmers markets has climbed. The renewed interest is likely due to people trying to improve their diets and increasing awareness about the environmental benefits of buying foods from local farmers. Because of this, people, who have never been to a farmers market before, may be planning to go to a farmers market this year.

If you've never been to a farmers market, you should know that most vendors are locally based. When you buy from them, you're contributing directly to your local economy. Most of these vendors have small operations and because of their operation's size, cannot sell their produce to large commercial wholesalers. Additionally, many producers incorporate sustainable measures into their agricultural practices to preserve the quality of their soil and water and minimize the use of chemicals on their products.

When you buy from a farmers market, you are likely buying produce that is at the peak of its freshness and picked within a day or two of coming to the market.

Look for produce that is in-season. Some examples of in-season produce are as follows:

Spring: asparagus, blackberries, lettuce, peas, spinach and strawberries

Summer: blueberries, cherries, cucumbers, green beans, melons, okra, sweet corn, tomatoes and zucchini

Winter: beets, cabbage, carrots, onions, winter squash and turnips

Good produce doesn't mean it is without aesthetic flaws. High-quality fruits and vegetables are crisp and brightly colored. For some fruits, like a peach or melon, a strong scent means they're perfectly ripening. Produce that is limp, soft or not crisp is likely over ripe and beginning to lose some of its nutritional value, texture and flavor.

If you aren't going to use the produce immediately, make sure it's safely stored to maintain its quality and freshness.

You should store fresh fruits and vegetables for as little time as possible as they will lose nutrients and quality over time. Potatoes, onions and winter squash should be stored in a cool, dark place, unwashed. Keep all other vegetables refrigerated at temperatures at or below 40 degrees Fahrenheit. Place peeled or cut produce in tightly covered containers within two hours.

For more information about farmers markets, contact the Casey County Cooperative Extension Service at 787-7384.

Purcell wins 2012 HHCC Invitational championship

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

The 2012 Hickory Hills Country Club Invitational Championship did not come down to a four-man playoff like last year; however, the winning score was one stroke better than last year.

Ben Purcell won the tournament title, beating last year's champion, Justin Jeffries, by two strokes.

Purcell, a member of the Eastern Kentucky University's men's golf team, was down two strokes from the leaders at the close of Saturday. He finished with 141, two strokes ahead of Jeffries, who took second place with 143.

The tournament drew 64 participants this year, a slightly lower number than past years, according to Tournament Director Troy Wheeler.

More than 60 participants played in the annual Hickory Hills Golf Club Invitational Tournament this past weekend. Ben Purcell won the tournament with a score of 141. The champion flight winners (pictured) were Joe Hood (6th), Ben Beeler (4th), Justin Jeffries (2nd), Purcell (winner), Brandon Gould (3rd) and Brad Butcher (5th).

"We kind of had a down year, but a lot of the courses are down this year," Wheeler said. "I don't know if it's the timing or what exactly. Next year we want to attract more people and grow the tournament."

Despite being down in numbers, the tournament did bring participants from afar.

"There were a lot more non-members (than club members) playing," Wheeler said. "We had a gentlemen that was with Craig Carman, Bill Palmer, that came from from (Las) Vegas and another gentleman, Greg Buis, that came from Nebraska."

Palmer finished fourth in the Consolation Flight while Buis was one of four closest to pin winners.

Prizes were awarded to the top six finishers in each flight, including AP1 Irons, a 910 D2 driver, a Scotty Cameron putter, a golf bag, a Vokey wedge and 1 dz. ProV1 balls.

SPORTS TALK

Gearing up for 2012 Olympic Opening Ceremonies

Rita "Peat" HARRIS
Sports Correspondent

It's finally here!

The 2012 Olympic Opening Cermonies kick off Friday. Haven't had time to keep up with the hype and qualifying? Here are some highlights on who we are pulling for on Team USA.

Men's Swimming: Michael Phelps, Ryan Locht and Anthony Ervin.

Phelps only needs three medals to pass the most decorated Olympian of all-time, Larisa Latynina, who claimed 18 medals through her career. Phelps sits at 16 after six golds and two silvers in 2004 and eight golds in 2008.

Meanwhile, Locht, who helped push Phelps to his stardom, is now posing as a challenge. The two will face off in both the 200- and 400-meter individual medley races to prove who is the better swimmer.

Ervin, a 2000 gold-medal swimmer, took leave of the sport for years before his 2011 return and has found his way back to the games. He will again compete in the 50-meter freestyle for Team USA, in pursuit of another gold in the event.

Men's Track & Field: Justin Gatlin, Ashton Eaton, Galen Rupp, Tyson Gay.

Gatlin returns to the Olympic stage after being banned from the 2008 due to a steroid scandal. Gatlin won the 100-meter at the U.S. trials earlier this summer.

Eaton broke the 11-year-old world decathlon record at the trials and is expected to win the event in London.

Rupp could possibly be the first American to win a medal in an event longer than 800-meters since 1968. He will compete in both the 5,000- and 10,000-meter runs.

And of course you must watch Kentuckian and world-renown runner Gay. I always like to brag about the fact I naively watched the speedster tear up the track at KHSAA state track meets back in my early running career.

Women's Track & Field: Allyson Felix, Lolo Jones, Sanya Richards-Ross.

Speed-demon Felix will compete in both the 100- and 200-meter with hopes of her first Olympic gold after taking home consecutive silver medals in the 200 in the last two games.

Although Jones is not the favored 100-meter hurdler, she has captured the attention of many and you never know what the attention could translate to on race day.

It is quite rare, but three other athletes, including Michael Johnson, have proven that it is possible to take gold in both the 200- and 400-meter sprints. Richards-Ross will aim to be the fourth person to do so.

Women's Beach Volleyball: Misty May-Treanor and Kerri Walsh-Jennings.

With over 10 years of part-

Olympics

nership on the sand, May and Walsh once went on a 101-game win streak along with capturing 18 tournament wins. However, since the duo picked up gold in both Athens and Beijing, they have experienced some defeat and now have China and Brazil nipping at their heels. Nonetheless, they are the 2012 favorites and will set an Olympic record if they capture their third consecutive gold.

Women's Gymnastics: Gabby Douglas and Jordan Wieber.

The United States women's gymnastic team has not won gold since Atlanta in 1996 and this team of youngsters are the favorites. There are hopes for several gold medals including Douglas, the "flying squirrel" on the uneven bars, and Wieber on the balance beam.

Men's Basketball: Do I even need to mention names to listen for? I bet most of you can name the entire team line-up anyway. Despite injuries to Dwayne Wade, Derrick Rose and Dwight Howard, I do not think anyone has lost any hope for Lebron and Kobe to lead the team to anything but gold in London.

Women's Soccer: Too many experiences of winning the World Cup, only to turn around and take silver in the Olympics, does not set well with our country's competitive spirit in general, but especially with this team of ladies. Hoping to avenge their loss to Japan in the 2011 World Cup, Hope Solo and Heather O'Reilly lead their team to the battle field.

Other names/events to pay attention to:

Judo: Kayla Harrison — Potential to be U.S.'s first Olympic champion in judo history.

Men's Gymnastics: Danell Leyva and John Orozco — They are leading the charge in bringing new light to the mens' side of the gymnastic house.

Wrestling: Jordan Burroughs — Reigning world champion, he is one of America's best hopes for a wrestling medal.

Weightlifting: Holley Mangold — More likely to be a 2016 medal contender, she is quickly improving and could surprise many in London.

Women's Swimming: Missy Franklin — She has the opportunity to be the first American female athlete to capture seven medals at one Olympiad.

Diving: David Boudia, Troy Dumais, Kristian Ispen — Team USA has not medaled in diving since 2000. Any or all of these three could bring a return to America's placing in this discipline.

Other first place favorites:

Taekwondo: Steven Lopez.

Archery: Brady Ellison.

Men's Beach Volleyball: Todd Rogers/Phil Dalhausser.

Women's Road Cycling: Individual Time - Kristin Armstrong.

Women's Basketball

First time Olympic title hopefuls: Men's and Women's water polo; Women's volleyball.

Needless to say, it is likely the most exciting event and news to keep up with is still TBD. That's part of the Olympic fun — the unexpected stories. The good news is with live-streaming of all events online for the first time, you should not have to miss a thing.

Now let's just hope the stereotypical rainy England weather doesn't ruin the fun.

Go USA!

FOCUS ON THE PAST

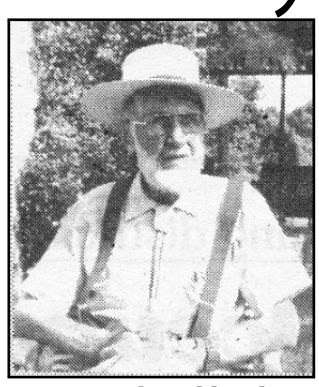

Iron bridge near Liberty

This iron bridge crossed Green River on Ky. 35 (now known as U.S. 127) in the early 1900s. It was replaced in July 1957 with the current bridge located south of Liberty near Dr. John Price's office. U.S. 127 was known as Ky. 35 until 1958, when improvements to the road were made. According to an article in The Casey County News on July 4, 1957, the bypass was also set to open for travel and was expected to greatly speed up traffic on Ky. 35.

Chamber mail is always interesting

The Casey County News

For several years we have received all the mail addressed to the Chamber of Commerce for Liberty and Casey County. Most of this mail is for the purpose of asking information about one subject or another. We always answer in true Chamber of Commerce style, putting forth the best foot for the county.

About half the information being sought is by school children from all parts of America. They have to write papers on a particular area. Another 30 percent wants information about buying farm land. The remainder can be about anything - and is.

Last week we had one of these unusual requests. It wanted clippings on the dedication of the new airport. This one is a nice request with stamped return envelopes and all. He is undoubtedly a collector of airports over America, which should be a fine hobby.

Another of the hobby groups who send stamped return envelopes are those wanting a picture of the courthouse. We always have 25 or so of these printed in advance which we can send out.

Just about all those wanting farm land are nuts. We turn the most interesting over to D.E. Tarter. They want anything from 2,000 acres to a half-acre. Recently one wrote in for 10 acres near a paved road, no more than 10 miles from town, with electricity and natural gas. He said his limit was $20 an acre. We wrote back, "Try Arizona."

The school kids offer a different problem. Several years ago we printed up two separate duplicator pages with some information on it. We need a printed folder which can be slipped into an envelope. There are about 40 requests a year for these. One of the interesting things about the stuff we have been sending out is that this county has changed remarkably over the last 10 years, and our material is badly outdated. The factual information on this county is old in any five year period.

A lot of the letters we get are fun, and some make small news articles. Some follow up with a visit to our office and these are generally nice people whom we like immediately.

Editor's Note: As space allows, The Casey County News will reprint some of the stories, editorials and columns written by the late Fred Burkhard, former editor/publisher of The Casey County News. Stories may be slightly edited.

Fulfilling

Nanette had encouraged him to work hard to fulfill all of his goals, but she admits she always thought it was a little far-fetched for him to go to Germany to see the castle. She was proud when she received the text from him.

"That truly was a moment where I was like, wow, that's determination," she said.

Even though he was in Europe, Spencer had to plan the trip and work hard to get to the castle.

"We took a train to Munich, then another two hour train to Neuschwanstein, then we had to hike 40 minutes up a mountain to get there," Spencer said. "It was absolutely awesome. It really was a defining moment because it was my inspiration for wanting to see the world and study abroad, but words can't describe what I was feeling."

He couldn't forget about the person who had inspired him to travel.

"I had to send Mrs. Fox a postcard from there," he said.

While in Europe, Spencer visited 16 countries: England, Germany, Italy, Vatican City, Switzerland, France, Spain, Hungary, Austria, Ireland, Scotland, Slovakia, Czech Republic, Belgium, Liechtenstein, and the Netherlands.

Spring semester in England

Even though he was nervous about being away from home, Spencer was comforted knowing that almost 40 other Western Kentucky University students were going.

Spencer, a rising junior at WKU in the honor's college program, is studying biology and chemistry, with plans to become a dentist.

While in England, Spencer stayed at Harlaxton College.

"Harlaxton is a huge manor house that looks like a castle," Spencer said.

While there he took three courses, British studies, music appreciation and endocrinology.

"We had four days of classes and three-day weekends. The program was built for us to travel," he said. "So on the weekends I was able to travel to different countries."

Scholarships covered his classes, but he was responsible for the cost of getting to the school, staying there and for any traveling he did on the weekends.

Backpacking across Europe

After completing his classes, Spencer and two of his friends backpacked across Europe from April 18 to May 12.

"All I had was the backpack on my back," he said. "We flew to Italy and we were in Italy for about 10 days, then we got a Eurail pass with access to 23 countries and you can hop on any train you want and go. And that's what we did. We had a 15 day pass and we train hopped."

They took a lot of night trains and saved time sleeping on the train.

"We would fall asleep in one town or country and wake up in another," Spencer said.

His favorite stop, other than Neuschwanstein Castle, was the Swiss Alps.

"We took a tram up the mountain and hiked through the snow and overlooked the Alps," he said. "I think that was just a moment when I realized the trip was once in a lifetime. I was so thankful that God had allowed me to have this opportunity. That was a big moment."

He saw a lot of the highlights of Europe in 15 days.

"It was awesome, but at the same time, it was a lot for three weeks. I was excited to come home," he said.

Mission trip to Haiti

After returning home from Europe, Spencer was worried that he wouldn't be able to finish raising money for his fraternity's mission trip to Haiti in three weeks. Each person needed to raise at least $2,400.

He was honored to find out that his church, Green River Valley Separate Baptist, sponsored him to go.

"That meant a lot to me that they trusted and supported me in my decision to go," Spencer said.

He spent June 1-10 in Haiti with 15 of his Phi Gamma Delta fraternity brothers to install three water treatment systems. Their group, "WaterForLife," worked with EDGE Outreach of Louisville, an international organization that provides training and equipment to individuals seeking to address water quality and sanitation issues in developing countries and post-disaster environments.

"It was extremely touching to hear how grateful the people were when we put in the first system," Spencer said.

He was surprised to see the third-world country and how devastated they still were after the earthquake.

"I visited 16 countries in Europe but experienced nothing like Haiti," he said.

Spencer was also there on a Christian mission trip.

"I expected to bring Christianity to them since it was a mission trip, but it was obvious God was there," he said. "Maybe they weren't satisfied with how the country was and their situation, but they found contentment with that and they were still happy."

Being in a third-world country broke the stereotype of poor places and taught him a lot about himself.

"They're just like us, they might speak a different language or have a different skin color but they have hopes and dreams just like us," he said. "They try to be happy with what they have. I didn't expect to find happiness and joy, but it was there."

One moment that really stood out to him was when he prayed with a group.

"We were all praying together, each person in their own language and I could feel God's presence," he said. "I knew everything we were doing was definitely worth it."

Spencer hopes the fraternity will continue WaterForLife and do biannual community service trips to countries all over the world.

Spencer credits his family for being able to travel and achieve his dreams.

"My family has been a strong support system all my life. They've supported everything I wanted to do," he said. "If they weren't here to support me, I wouldn't be able to do everything I've done. I'm very appreciative of that."

He would also like to send a message to students in Casey County who think that where they live means they can't fulfill their dreams or travel the world.

"It's kind of a unique thing for someone from Casey County to do this," Spencer said. "I graduated from Casey County High School and I did this. I think a lot of people think they can't, but they need people to say 'You can.' Laura Fox did that for me. She planted that seed and it grew. I would encourage everyone to go for their goals. There's definitely a way if you want to go. I want them to know they can do it too."

His mother, Nanette, agrees.

"Just because you're from a small town that doesn't mean you can't live and see the world like everyone else does," she said. "I always told both my sons, 'Do today what others won't, and tomorrow you can do what others can't.'"

photo/SUBMITTED

Despite a language barrier, Spencer enjoyed interacting with the people in Haiti, especially the children. If an interpreter wasn't around, he would use a stick to draw pictures in the sand to communicate with the children. Spencer was in Haiti on a mission trip through his fraternity Phi Gamma Delta and to install three water treatment systems.

Library

It's still not known how many books were lost but at last count, more than 40 large trash bags of books have been collected.

These books were catalogued in an effort to determine their value and get them replaced, Banks said.

Also, library officials are dealing with insurance adjusters to cover the expenses of replacing books, carpeting and other items lost.

Another problem that had to be addressed was mold growing from the wet carpet and on the walls.

"Right now, mold is our biggest enemy with the high humidity that's in the library," said Library Director Jan Banks, adding that the carpet has been removed.

With hot temperatures all over the country, the HVAC service repair people are having trouble finding parts, Banks said.

In addition to the concern about mold, Banks said that the water running down the wall had caused bat guano to leak out of the ceiling. Bat guano is bat dung.

And, that raises questions of health safety with bat dung in the library.

Health issues

"Bat guano, or bat feces per se, may not be toxic but they may be contaminated with many things, including histoplasmosis," said Dr. David Mannino, with the Department of Preventative Medicine at the University of Kentucky in Lexington.

According to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, histoplasmosis is a fungus which lives in the environment, usually in association with large amounts of bird or bat droppings.

The CDC web site states that lung infection can occur after a person inhales airborne, microscopic fungal spores from the environment; however, many people who inhale the spores do not get sick.

Additionally, the symptoms of histoplasmosis are similar to pneumonia, and the infection can sometimes become serious if it is not treated.

However, Mannino said that wet bat feces such as was found in one small part of the library was more isolated and therefore not an extensive problem.

"It's probably less problematic as an isolated event. You can fix the underlying problem and remediate the issue," Mannino said.

Banks said that ServPro restoration services from Somerset began professional cleaning of the library on Saturday.

"They have 10 to 12 large air purification machines that will run for at least five days," she said.

Additionally, the hole in the building where the bats were getting into the ceiling will be plugged.

As for the bats in the ceiling, library officials are contacting companies about safely removing and relocating the bats to a more natural habitat.

And before the library is reopened, all areas will be cleaned and sanitized and air quality tests will be conducted to assure patrons that the library air is safe to breathe, Banks said.

Books lost

The majority of the books damaged were in the history section and Banks said that it's not known at this time if the books that were lost can even be replaced.

"The World War II books given to the library by Myer Garner were damaged," Banks said.

Garner, Banks said, was a colorful local character who was a World War II veteran, attorney, and district court judge.

Banks said that a search will be conducted to replace as many of the books as possible.

"Even though it was in the history section where a lot of books aren't the most checked out, it's still part of our history and many of these books are out of print. I hope that we can find most of them," she said.

And while the search is on, clean-up continues.

"People need to know that the library will be closed until clean up is complete and it's safe for our customers," Banks said.

Books with bat guano are stacked on tables before being bagged for disposal at Casey County Public Library on Thursday.

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

A Stanford man has been indicted on burglary and theft charges of equipment from the Hickory Hills Country Club.

Brandon Christopher Schmiers, 28, of 830 East Main St., Stanford, was indicted by a Casey County Grand Jury on Friday on two counts each of third-degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking, over $10,000 and over $500. Schmiers also face four counts of first-degree being a persistent felony offender.

Indicted in the same case on similar charges was Trevor Wayne Sims, 23, of 2080 William Whitley Road, Stanford.

The pair are accused of burglarizing a maintenance building at Hickory Hills Country Club on or about April 22 or 23, 2012. They are also accused of taking a riding mower, two weed-eaters, a reciprocator, and a golf cart belonging to Joe Emerson.

The grand jury also indicted eight others:

Burns is accused of taking a utility trailer belonging to Alan King on or about June 7. Burns was also indicted on a separate charge of theft by unlawful taking over $500 for allegedly taking tractor weights and steel items on June 7 belonging to Shannon White.

■ Michael A. Tetreault, 20, of 1168 East Ky. 70, Liberty, was indicted on a charge of third-degree complicity to commit burglary and complicity to commit theft by unlawful taking over $500. Tetreault is accused of aiding Brandon J. Cooper in a burglary and theft.

Burglary

"He then got his shotgun and loaded a couple shells," Weddle said.

As he came to the front door, he encountered a woman and told her they needed to leave.

"They weren't moving fast enough, so he fired once in the air," he said. He then fired a second shot into the air and they picked up the pace and left. After the suspects left, Clements discovered items were missing.

Clements identified Brummet and Rogers, Weddle said.

"They admitted to going into one other place, but couldn't remember where," Weddle said. "They said their plan was if no one was home, they were going to break in."

They are being charged with attempted burglary, second degree, for an incident at Danny Lee's home on Ky. 1547 on July 9.

After Lee didn't respond to knocks on his door, he saw Brummett attempt to gain entry by shoving his shoulder against the front door. Lee saw the couple leave in a white Chevrolet car.

Brummett admitted that he and Rogers drove a white Chevrolet Malibu to several homes in Casey County. They were test driving the Malibu from U.S. 150 Auto Sales in Stanford, Weddle said.

On July 19, the couple knocked on the door of a home in Moreland. The owner mentioned the incident on Facebook and a family member who lives in Casey County saw the post and contacted the sheriff's office, Weddle said.

The homeowner was able to get the license plate number. The white SUV, a 2004 Saturn Vue, belongs to Rogers' mother, who was not involved, he said.

After talking with people he was able to get the suspects' names. Weddle then alerted surrounding law enforcement agencies.

"We appreciate everybody working on this together," Weddle said. "It was a group effort between the victims, public, and city police. We were able to pull together and get the information we needed."

Roger and Brummett are being held at the Casey County Detention Center on a $10,500 cash bond. At press time, they were set to appear in Casey District Court on Tuesday morning.
